About the Designer

Hi, I'm Julie Rawding — Interior Designer with a Master's in Architecture.

I specialise in helping families create beautiful, functional homes — especially when space is limited. This particular living room design is based on a real UK new-build layout, with all the practical details considered: scale, flow, and how we actually live in our homes.

I believe styling should be approachable, affordable, and fun — not overwhelming. I hope this design brings a touch of calm and creativity to your space.

Materials Inspiration

Boho earthy interiors are not just about colours and shapes — they're all about how things feel. This page will guide you through the materials chosen for this look and explain how to mix them with confidence.

Wood:

Natural oak, mango wood or walnut tones bring warmth and ground the space. Look for visible grain or rattan panels for a more organic feel.

Textiles:

Think soft cotton, chunky knits, and breezy linen. Layering different textures in cushions, throws or curtains adds that relaxed, lived-in vibe.

Natural materials:

Clay, ceramics, terracotta pots, jute rugs, and rattan help soften modern lines and create that earthy, grounded feel.

Glass & metal accents:

Use sparingly to add subtle contrast and definition. Think brass curtain poles, small metal lamps, or delicate framed mirrors. A glass vase or mirror can also help reflect natural light and open up a small space without adding visual clutter. The key is balance — just a touch of shine within the earthy textures.

Moodboard View A

A warm and earthy living room concept featuring natural textures, soft beige tones, and terracotta accents. The space blends comfort and style with a neutral sofa, rattan elements, and gold lighting for a touch of elegance.

Moodboard View B

A cozy and inviting corner with rich brown tones and soft layering. The design highlights a dark chocolate sofa, wooden media unit, and natural fiber accessories, creating a relaxed yet refined family-friendly space.
